

terrace-house repository for Bill Russell's paper "Archival Ethics" which was no less excellent because of the limited time he had available. Bill had to return promptly to Canberra and so the remainder went pilgrim-like to Canterbury where Ian Maclean in the role of chef-extraordinaire fed the masses spaghetti and entertained liberally. Peter Walne then talked about the revision of the Constitution of the Society of Archivists, and what is known as a spirited discussion ensued.

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

Lee McGregor is Assistant Archivist, Queensland State Archives, Brisbane.

P. J. Crush writes this contribution in a private capacity.

T. F. Nielsen is Conservator, Restoration Workshop, State Library of New South Wales.

Stuart Strachan is Archivist, Hocken Library, Otago University, Dunedin, New Zealand.

Brian Baldwin is Assistant Archivist, South Australian Archives, State Library of South Australia, Adelaide.

H. J. Gibbney is a member of the staff of the Australian Dictionary of Biography, Research School of Social Sciences, Australian National University, Canberra. He was formerly on the staff of the Commonwealth Archives Office (now called the Australian Archives).

R. C. Sharman is the Editor of this journal. During the time that he has held this Editorship, he has been State Archivist in Queensland, Archives Officer at the Research School of Social Sciences, Australian National University, Canberra, and Assistant State Librarian, State Library of South Australia, Adelaide.