

About the Contributors

Chris Hurley has been Keeper of Public Records in Victoria since 1981. He worked in the Australian Archives from 1970 to 1980 and was extensively involved in the development of archives legislation for the archives of the Commonwealth.

Livia Iacovino has a BA (Hons) from the University of Melbourne and the Graduate Diploma in Information Management (Archives and Records) from the Melbourne College of Advanced Education. Currently part-time Senior Consultant with the Public Record Office of Victoria, she has previously worked for Australian Archives as well as undertaking a variety of freelance work in both archives and records management. Livia received the inaugural ASA Prize for her achievements during the Diploma course.

Irene Kearsley is the Chief Medical Record Adviser, Health Department Victoria. She has a B.App.Sc. (Medical Record Administration) and is currently undertaking the MA (Archives and Records) at Monash University.

Nancy Lutton was Editor of Archives and Manuscripts from 1982 to 1987. She has recently accepted the position of Chief Archivist at the National Archives and Public records Service in Papua New Guinea.

Sigrid McCausland is Archives Services Officer at the Council of the City of Sydney. She has taught archives at the University of New South Wales, and has worked in the Mitchell Library, State Library of New South Wales and the Australian Archives. She was on the Editorial Board for Keeping Archives and was involved in the ASA Sydney Branch's workshops program from its inception to its completion.

David Roberts is currently Assistant Director, Information Services in the New South Wales Regional Office of the Australian Archives. During 1986 and 1987 he was involved in the Archives' investigations into the disposal of electronic records, and is convenor of the Australian Council of Archives' Standing Committee on Machine Readable Records.

Helen Smith is currently archivist at the State Bank of Victoria. She formerly held several positions at the Public Record Office of Victoria and was instrumental in the development of the computerised system described in this issue.