

About the Contributors

Steve Abrahamffy joined the ACT Regional Office of Australian Archives in 1986 and moved to Central Office in 1988. He is currently the Project Officer for General Disposal Authorities.

Kathryn Dan joined the ACT Regional Office of Australian Archives in 1987 and is currently working in the Development and Training area of the Records Evaluation and Disposal section of Central Office. Recently she has been working on “normal administrative practice” and advice on the use of consultants for appraisal and sentencing services.

Marina Duncan is currently enrolled at the University of New South Wales in the Diploma of Information Management—Archives Administration. She is a part-time student (1990 being her final year) and also works as an archivist at the Royal Agricultural Society.

Marian Hoy is an Assistant Director in the Records Information Management Section of the central office of Australian Archives. The section is responsible for the development and management of the CRS system and of the RINSE database.

Chris Hurley has been keeper of Public Records in Victoria since 1981. He worked in the Australian Archives from 1970 and to 1980 and was extensively involved in the development of Archives legislation for the Archives of the Commonwealth.

Sam Kaima is lecturer in archives and records management in the Department of Library and Information Studies at the University of Papua New Guinea. He holds an MA in Pacific Island Studies from the University of Hawaii (1989), and is studying for the Masters in Library and Information Science. He has worked in libraries and archives in Hawaii and Papua New Guinea.

Lorraine Macknight worked in Australian Archives 1972-1976, returning there in 1985 as a Project Officer to prepare the manuscript of Relations in Records. Since July 1986, she has been Curator of Official Records at the Australian War Memorial.

Michael McCarthy joined the then Commonwealth Archives Office in 1969. He has worked in a number of different areas of Australian Archives' Central and ACT Regional Offices, including the Central Office Disposal Section (now Records Evaluation and Disposal) since 1984. His current position is Assistant Manager, Personal and Corporate Records Service.

Sue Mckemmish is Senior Lecturer in the Master of Arts (Archives and Records) program at Monash University's Graduate School of Librarianship, Archives and records, seconded from the Public Record Office, Victoria where she has worked since 1983. From 1975 to 1983 she worked at the Victorian Regional Office of Australian Archives.

Greg O'Shea is currently working in the Records Evaluation and Disposal Section of Australian Archives, Central Office. Recently he has been involved in the development of electronic records policy and procedures. He has previously worked in the NSW Regional Office, and as Records Manager with the NSW Regional Office of the Commonwealth Department of Administrative Services.

Kerrie Scott is the Manager of National Operations in the Records Evaluation and Disposal section of Australian Archives, Central Office.

Steve Stuckey is the National Director of the Records Evaluation and Disposal Program, Australian Archives.