

AUSTRALIAN SOCIETY OF ARCHIVISTS INC

annual conference 2002

The Conference will look outside the boundaries of our profession, at the relationships that other groups in society have with records, and their expectations of archivists and other recordkeepers. In planning the Conference we aim to encourage recordkeepers to look beyond our usual professional preoccupations and think about our place in the world. The essence of our professional role is seen as mediating incompatible, sometimes irreconcilable, social expectations arising from the creation, existence and uses of records.
